Preclinical Level III Overview

Designed to provide candidates with an extended supervised field experience in a school classroom, Preclinical Experience Level 3 focuses on putting it all together – planning, instructional delivery, and assessment. Candidates observe, assist, and teach several lessons under the joint supervision of a cooperating teacher in the school and a supervisor. Candidates develop lesson plans, conduct the lessons, and evaluate their own teaching of these lessons in consultation with the cooperating teacher and the supervisor. Candidates submit written lesson plans along with their reflective self-evaluations after the teaching of the lessons. At the culmination of this experience, candidates are prepared to begin their candidate teaching experience.
