Dr. Anne Carson Daly, the sixth president of Mount Saint Mary College, has had careers in academia, government, and business. After graduating from Mount Holyoke College with a B. A. in English and History, she earned her M. A. and Ph.D. in English Literature from Johns Hopkins University. She taught English there and subsequently at the University of Notre Dame as well as at Georgetown University. During part of the Reagan, Bush, and Clinton administrations, she served as the second-in-command for a White House Council that advised the President of the United States, the Congress, and the Secretary of Education on educational matters nationwide. In the world of business, Dr. Daly worked for Pfizer, Inc., the world's largest pharmaceutical company, where she supervised Policy Communications globally. In this capacity, she spearheaded several national and international education initiatives, and handled policy issues concerning corporate governance and intellectual property for the company. Before coming to the Mount, she was Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculty at Belmont Abbey College in North Carolina.

Dr. Daly has co-translated a major historical work from French to English, has written and/or edited monographs on education, has published more than eighty articles and reviews, and has given more than one hundred lectures all over the United States, as well as in Ireland, France, and Germany. Her publications have been on a wide array of topics—including literature, religion, architecture, education, business, and Irish culture.
