

presents

Joan Greatrex, Ph.D.

Medieval English monastic and church historian specializing in Benedictine cathedral priories and their manuscripts.

October 14-15, 2009

Wednesday, October 14, 2009

7:00 p.m.

“Fauna and Flora in the English Monastic Precinct in the later Middle Ages”
Birck Hall, Room 112 (Tellabs Lecture Hall)

Thursday, October 15, 2009

12:20 - 1:20 p.m.

“English Monk Students at University in the later Middle Ages”
Scholl Hall, Room 101

For more information, contact:

Christine Fletcher, Ph.D., at (630) 829-6263

or visit the Web at www.ben.edu/news/events/event_calendar.asp

or

www.ben.edu/programs/centers_institutes/CMI

Joan Greatrex, Ph.D., earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Toronto, a master's from the University of Manitoba and a Ph.D. from the University of Ottawa. She lectured at St. John's College, University of Manitoba, in the early 1960s before teaching at St. Patrick's College, University of Ottawa during the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Greatrex has written six books focusing on Medieval history and monastic life, and authored numerous articles on subjects such as “The English cathedral priories and the pursuit of learning in the later Middle Ages” that was published in the Journal of Ecclesiastical History.

 Benedictine University®

Benedictine University's Visiting Scholar in Catholic Thought brings to campus each semester a distinguished scholar who works within the Catholic intellectual tradition in order to raise awareness among students and the community.